

Sponsored Webinar San Diego Section, AACC
FREE to members and their guests

Tuesday,
April 16

Tweeting vs. Knitting: Overcoming Generational Conflicts in the Clinical Laboratory

Location: UCSD Center for Advanced Laboratory Medicine
UC San Diego, 10300 Campus Point Drive, San Diego, CA 92121.

Conference Room C, on the SE side of the building; first parking lot on the right as you enter the complex.

Carmen Wiley, PhD, DABCC, FACB

Co-director of Chemistry, Immunology, and Point-of-Care Testing, Providence Sacred Heart Medical Center and Director, Bioanalytics
Laboratory, PAML, Spokane, WA

Program Information

Tweeting vs. Knitting: Overcoming Generational Conflicts in the Clinical Laboratory is the third of eight programs in the AACC/Seattle Children's Hospital Lab Management Series of webinars. Laboratorians from all generations can learn something about how their peers communicate and work by attending this thought-provoking webinar. Dr. Carmen Wiley will provide you with the tools you need to motivate, manage, and work with the four generations of individuals who are working in labs today (the traditionalists, the baby boomers, generation X, and the millennials).

