Submitted for Two Hours Continuing Education (CE) credits

Learning Objectives 1: After the presentation, Pharmacogenomics & Pharmacometabolomics for Personalized Medicine, participants will be able to

1. Update on the latest, modified central dogma of molecular biology, the importance of omics science and biomarkers as described in the recent Institute of Medicine Report, and their potential contributions to the emerging practice of Personalized Medicine.
2. Relate the basic principles of pharmacogenomics to other factors for individualized therapy and the latest developments using NGS and GWAS.
3. Apply pharmacogenomics for drug therapy and toxicology

Learning Objectives 2: AACC Headquarters Report, participants will be able to

1. Describe how AACC is implementing its strategic plan.
2. Integrate local section programming with AACC's strategic initiatives
